

How to Install on Multiple Computers

Please read this entire document before proceeding.

To perform an installation on multiple computers, you should first install, activate, and configure the program on a single computer. Then export the configuration from that computer to the folder that contains the "setup.exe" file that will be used to install the program on other computers. If the setup.exe file detects the configuration folder during installation, it will automatically copy the activation for all users on the computer, and it will automatically apply the configuration settings for the user that is logged on during the installation. If the computer has additional users, you can manually copy the configuration folder to the roaming profiles folder for each additional user.
